It's a big, wide, wonderful world that you live in
When you are a part of a great school like Arthur Hill.
At Arthur Hill we learn to live—
To experience friendship, excitement, satisfaction.
Our brick building is of little significance;
What is important is its people,
Arthur Hill's individuals—
The administration, faculty, and students—
Are the spirit of our school.

The eruption of applause as our team runs on the field,
The thundering cheer, "V-I-C-T-O-R-Y," at a pep assembly,
The intense competition of the S.O. campaign,
These are expressions of our spirit—
The people of Arthur Hill.

Friendship is a valuable commodity.
 Hillites are constantly striving to make friends
 And to be friends.
 By getting involved with people,
 We broaden the scope of our world.
 The most useful knowledge we can gain these three years
 Does not come from a text book nor a lecture,
 But from the friendships we make.
 We have a few very special friendships:
 The pal we can confide in,
 Our companion at the prom,
 The teacher who understands us;
 But we also have many casual acquaintances.
 They, too, help form our world.
 It takes all kinds of friends
 To make a world like ours.

Honor is the companion of every Hillite;

With his teachers,

With his friends,

With himself—everyday of his life.

This makes us a part of our world.

Every Hillite admires the beauty about him,

He only hopes that he can be a part of it.

For our world is so very far away and so very near.

It is a part of all that we have done and

All that we must do.

On the world's swirling breeze floats our wish for a lifetime.

This makes us aware of our world.

At Arthur Hill our teachers are a sense of inspiration,
 And interested persons to turn to
 From them we learn many things:
 The Values of Living,
 The Demands of Society,
 And Achievement with Honor.

But learning does not stop in the class room
 We learn from our friends, from our experiences,
 And from the traditions of Arthur Hill.

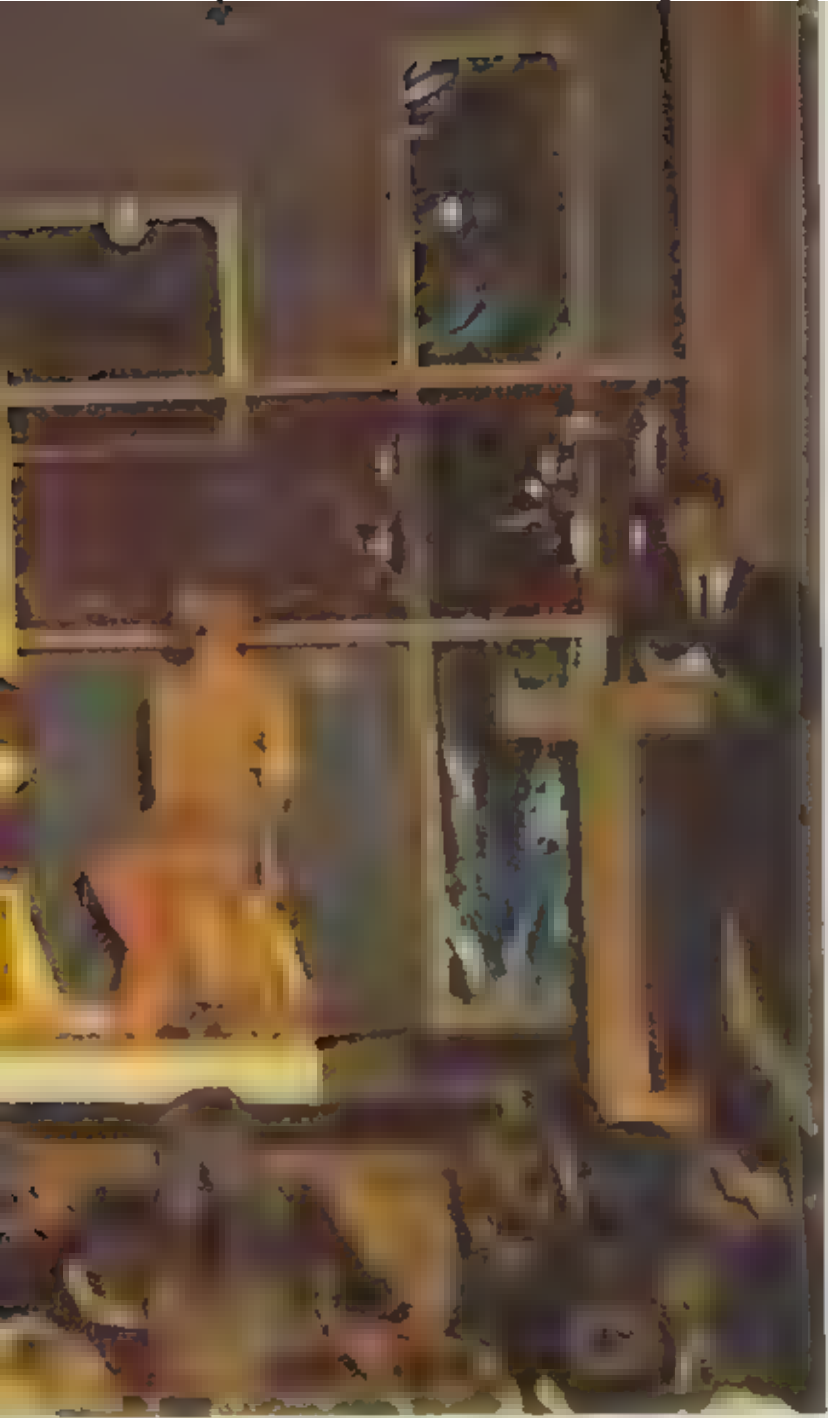

At Arthur Hill we have valuable opportunities:
 To think.
 To learn.
 To do

For a Hillite's world can be as large as he wants it to be.
 As high as the mountains or as deep as the sea
 He has only to dream.

Achievement plays a big part in a Hillite's life
 It is all around him
 The tears of a girl who has been chosen for the queen's court
 The enthusiasm of a boy who has made the football team
 The smile of a student who has received an 'A'
 He, too, has experienced success during his stay at Arthur Hill
 It may have been socially, scholastically, artistically or athletically
 Every Hillite is an individual.
 He excels in something
 The moment of satisfaction with his achievement
 Is when each person especially appreciates the treasures of his world,
 For it is his world - it belongs to him

We learn to be individuals at Arthur Hill.
We participate in large organizations and small groups;
We think for ourselves
We think about a lot of things:
The undeclared war in Viet Nam,
Our future occupations,
How we should comb our hair
These things are important to us;
They help form our world.

Life has certainly been good to us:
We realize this when we stop to look at the past;
But we cannot linger over our memories
We have a lot more living to do.
And a big, wide, wonderful world to do it in.

THE true harvest of my daily life is somewhat as intangible and indescribable as the tints of morning or evening. It is a little star-dust caught, a segment of the rainbow which I have clutched.

Room Shortage Faces Board of Education

Unlike the Pied Piper of Hamelin who led the children of the town astray, the Saginaw Board of Education works hard to lead 22,155 Saginaw school children to a richer adulthood. Composed of seven members plus Charles Coulter, superintendent, and Dr. Milford Holt, director of secondary education, the board made necessary financial decisions, awarded diplomas to 1256 graduates, and organized committees to study the needs of Saginaw's youth.

Because of a shortage of classrooms in both elementary and secondary schools, the board purchased eight mobile classrooms and put them to immediate use. As additional funds become available, more educational facilities will be constructed.

CONSIDERING—Mr. Giesecke thinks about the problem

ADVISING—Mr. Giesecke gives a solution to the problem

As principal of Arthur Hill High School, Harold W. Giesecke has provided creative leadership for teachers and concerned guidance for students.

That Arthur Hill has gained wide recognition in both academic and athletic achievements was Mr. Giesecke's opinion. He felt that today's students have developed a greater interest toward education since they have become more keenly aware of job and college competition. But along with learning, he felt that students should partake in extracurricular activities to gain a sense of responsibility and a wider concept of teamwork.

Before becoming principal in 1962, Mr. Giesecke served as counselor and as head of the mathematics department. Mr. Giesecke, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, has earned a master's degree from DePaul University in Chicago.

Mr. Birdsall Assumes Added Responsibilities

After a summer's illness, Miss Helen Olmstead returned to her job as dean of students. In her absence, Miss Olmstead's work was handled by Mr. Birdsall and the office staff.

Assistant principal Mr. Keith Birdsall stated that every Hillite is capable of assuming scholastic and extra curricular responsibilities. During the academic year, Mr. Birdsall backed student undertakings, compiled the school calendar, and handled discipline problems among numerous other duties.

Pamphlets, college applications, aptitude and achievement tests, and alterations in class schedules cluttered the counselors' desks. Students sought information on colleges and advice on scholarships and other competitive awards. Parent-counselor and student-counselor conferences formed an important part of the counselors' duties. Testing programs were established along with career interviews.

Since the number of students applying for colleges has increased in the last year, a greater demand for college information has developed. The guidance center met this demand by obtaining a greater supply of college applications and catalogs from hundreds of colleges.

Replacing retiring faculty members, who had formerly served on the Faculty Cabinet, Mrs. Lorene Bishop, Miss Mildred Costa, Mr. Albert Fetting, and Mrs. Anna McDonough were named to the group in fall, 1965.

When the need arose, the faculty cabinet met to discuss various policy matters that took place during the school year.

During the Christmas season sixty-two children of the faculty members witnessed Santa Claus' entry into the cafeteria from one of the cafeteria windows. While Santa's sleigh was parked on the school roof, he told Christmas stories, lead the singing of Christmas carols, and distributed presents to the children. Also on the Christmas agenda was the Faculty Christmas Tea which was a gathering for current faculty members as well as many former faculty members.

2114 Hillites Keep Service Personnel Busy

Lights burned brightly at night as the custodians worked sweeping the halls and classrooms for the next day. Mowing the grass, shoveling the snow, and maintaining the stadium were only a few jobs that kept the custodians busy. Donald Chaltraw, Richard Dashkovitz, Ellsworth Fent, Adolph Hensel, Charles Hodges, Armand Karaw, Chester Kinville, Richard Lamb, Elizabeth Oszust, Joe Schmeck, Alex Waier, Edward Weisbarth, and Emil Weiss worked hard in giving Arthur Hill its sparkling appearance.

While the students were in their morning classes the cafeteria staff was busy preparing hearty meals for the 2114 famished Hillites. Careful preparation, abundance, and variety of food were the ingredients of the lunches prepared by the cafeteria staff.

THE LEGEND OF SLEEPY HOLLOW, one of the books on the new reading lists, is enjoyed by Carol Beller

Arthur Hill's English teachers took a new look at their curriculum in 1966. They planned to arrange their courses so that there would be more correlation between them, convinced that students would receive more benefit from their classes if, rather than cover the same grammar year after year, certain specific areas were stressed in each course. For example, the tenth grade classes would stress the parts of speech, the sentence, and the paragraph; and the twelfth grade would work on the long theme.

In January the English teachers gathered to prepare new reading lists. They chose books that are stimulating but not too difficult for the students of their grade level to read.

Students in some English classes were required to buy certain paperback books such as Arrowsmith, The Lifetime Reading Plan, and Huckleberry Finn to supplement the materials given to them by the board of education. They studied these books both in and out of the classroom.

DICTIONARIES never appear on reading lists, but Joyce Natali and every other student at Arthur Hill is encouraged to use them more than any other books in the library.

New Overhead Projector Aids History Class

Mr. Hugh Shackelford has been using the new overhead projector and a series of overlays which included transparencies of important campaigns in the Revolutionary War.

World history students related the past to the present by studying such periods as the Renaissance. They learned that the rise of the middle class accounted for today's society. Students gained valuable knowledge by giving reports about such topics as the Aeneid.

Through a complex study of the "Constitution of the United States," government students developed an understanding of the jobs of the Senate and House of Representatives. By reading the American Observer, students learned about President Johnson's anti-poverty program and the United States' stand in Viet Nam.

As senior Linda Fechner put it, "In economics we learned how the government spends its money." Knowledge gained in economics concerning supply and demand will benefit students in the future.

"To improve thinking by learning about description, prediction, and control of human behavior," is the purpose of psychology said Mr. Harve Light. Mr. Light felt that by spending time learning selling and advertising skills, the student would benefit greatly in later life.

After new microphones had been installed in the language lab, teachers of language classes instructed students in understanding and speaking an unfamiliar language through the improved facilities. Miss Yates preferred to use a tape recorder in her own room. She often recorded a whole class's recitation of an unfamiliar reading lesson. After first and second year French students heard themselves speak on tape they rapidly improved their pronunciation. Miss Polglase, however, teaching Spanish for the first time this year at Arthur Hill, made frequent use of the newly-repaired language lab.

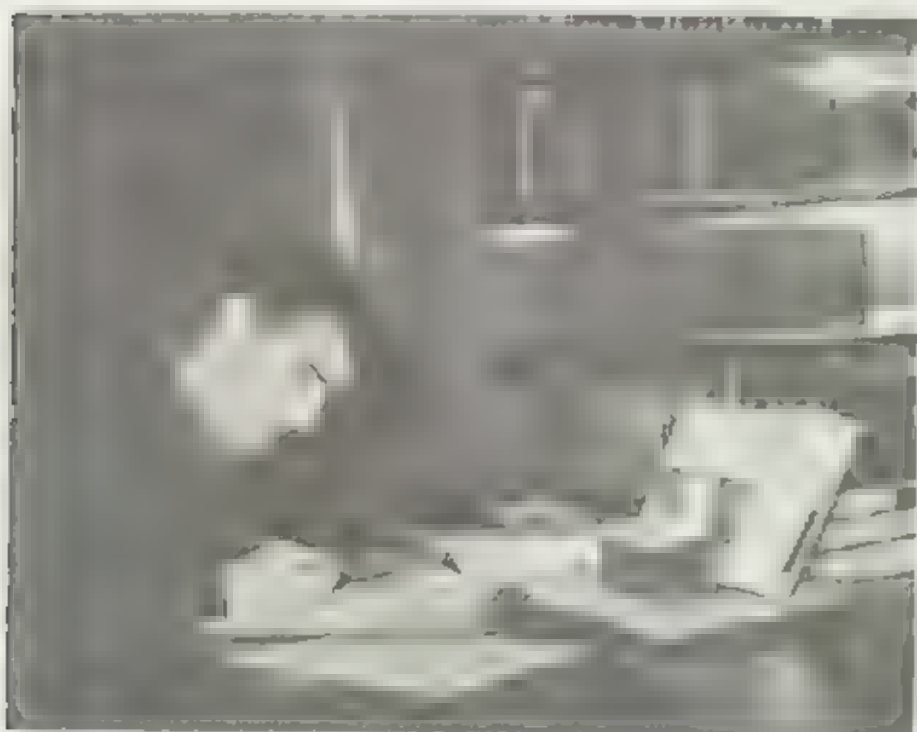

Aided by Miss Patow and Miss Eckert, a new teacher at Arthur Hill, Latin students learned that many English words are derived directly from Latin. Students studied Roman life and its contribution to our present culture by viewing slides of Miss Patow's recent European trip. Studies also included courses in Roman history and mythology and the translation of Caesar's Commentaries on the Gallic Wars and Vergil's Aenied.

New Drama Class

After working on many school drama productions, Mrs. Lorene Bishop, Arthur Hill English teacher and drama sponsor, taught a new drama class offered for the first time this year. A dedicated group of Hillites channelled their enthusiasm for drama through what they found to be a worthwhile academic course.

To achieve the goals she set for her students, Mrs. Bishop presented a varying set of projects. One of the first of such projects was an inventory of the many costumes accumulated by the drama department. Boxes containing everything from nurses' uniforms to discarded fans and umbrellas were moved to the tower room where dresses were hung on hangers, and useless props discarded.

Stressing drama as a form of literature, Mrs. Bishop discussed plays ranging from the classical Antigone by Sophocles to the avant-garde Rhinoceros by Eugene Ionesco. The public speaking teacher, Mr. Patrick Drake, offered advice on set construction.

THOMAS ALSGAARD ponders the usefulness of a felt hat, and Kristine Lauer tries a jacket on Theodore Masterton, while Daniela Hessinger and Bebe Schindehette discover long ignored costumes

Develops Trained Actors

Actors also had the opportunity to take part in at least two plays during the school year. The Arthur Hill drama department presented, among other plays, Rhinoceros and two short dramas for the Child Guidance Clinic.

Members of the Arthur Hill debate team, supervised by Mr. Gerald Schairer, learned that a reliable debate box represented hours of reading on this year's debate topic, labor and management relations. Schools debated with for the first time this year were: Douglas MacArthur, East Lansing, Bridgeport and Swan Creek. Most debate students also participated in the forensics contests held during the second semester.

Mr. Patrick Drake, new public-speaking teacher at Arthur Hill, introduced a new unit on semantics to supplement other units of study such as extemporaneous speaking and oral interpretation.

Students for Mature and Logical Thinking

"A three year academic program for superior students" describes Arthur Hill's honors mathematics program. Honors geometry students studied both plane and solid geometric figures. Linear, quadratic, and cubic equations were extensively explored by honors algebra students. The honors trigonometry course included selected topics from logic, analytic geometry, and trigonometry.

All math courses were designed with the future in mind. Mr. George Purdy reported that geometry is "the most practical course offered in school, since everything is measured including time and thoughts." Algebra and trigonometry are necessary for future engineers and chemists. Math P prepared students for plane geometry, while Math V gave sophomores a second year of general mathematics.

Besides preparing students for the future, mathematics courses taught students to "think under pressure," said Mr. Donald McPhee.

Future Salks, Curies Led by Plant Study and Chemical Formulas

Department head, Miss Eloise Bacon, claimed that students taking biology would "find college natural science easy."

Last autumn students in Mr. Donald Damer's biology class could be seen crawling around on their hands and knees. No, they were not looking for four leaf clovers. Each student had marked a one square foot plot in the grass. Then he was told to name and describe how much life he found in that plot. Students were amazed when they discovered how many different types of plants and insects were contained in such a small area.

On lab days chemistry students performed such interesting experiments as the distilling of water. They found the molecular weight of water and learned how to write chemical formulas and balance equations.

Mr. James Hooper's physics classes studied the mechanics of heat, sound, light and electricity. They strived to master the use of the slide rule.

Miss Susan Qualset, new natural science teacher, felt that the purpose of natural science is "to increase students' awareness and appreciation of their surroundings." She felt students will benefit in later life from taking this course because they will find enjoyment in their natural environment.

Socio-Drama, Blueprints Puzzle Hill Students

In home economics class Hillites pursued such diverse activities as socio-drama and flower arranging. What is socio-drama? Students wore signs bearing the names of such family members as father, mother, and teen-age son; then they acted the part of the name they were wearing when confronted by family disagreements.

Interior decorating students learned the art of flower arranging; some of their arrangements have been displayed in the office this year.

T-squares and compasses challenged students who elected to take mechanical drawing or architectural drafting. Drafting students became acquainted with such details as foundation and plumbing symbols. Complete construction plans had to be drawn before metal shop workers could begin shaping such projects as tool boxes.

While acquiring a skill in reading blueprints and plans, Hillites were aided by Mr. Goodman, former wood shop supervisor now replacing Mr. Pieritz, who retired last year after twenty-two years at Arthur Hill.

ATTENTION! Boys in gym class line up for roll call.

By learning various steps from callers' commands on square dance records, girls in gym classes found the importance of following directions and enjoyed themselves while accomplishing it.

Miss Orvene Johnson followed the hypothesis that physical education students will benefit from gym class in later life by "learning skills they can use in their leisure time after high school or college." Such skills included tennis and volleyball.

Mr. Donald Morey reported that the purpose of swimming class is "to promote aquatics and possibly save lives." After learning not to be afraid of the water, beginning swimmers practiced the "jellyfish float" and learned the proper way to breathe and kick.

Guest speakers enriched the book work phase of Arthur Hill's driver education program. Mr. Floyd Webb, traffic and safety representative of the Automobile Association of America; Mr. Kenneth Melville, executive secretary of the Greater Saginaw Safety Council; and Corporal Morris Tubbs of the Michigan State Police, as well as Mr. Earl Burnett, Arthur Hill teacher, stressed proper attitudes toward driving. Mr. Burnett stated, "The student learns things which just may save his life." These things included fundamental driving skills and traffic laws.

"Use those directional signals!" "Slow down out there!" Such exclamations were frequently heard in the driver training area as behind-the-wheel driver training students came to realize the responsibility of becoming drivers.

"WORDS AND LITERATURE AND LAWS do not necessarily make you and me sensible, safe drivers," explains Mr. Floyd Webb.

"BACK UNTIL YOU SEE THE LEFT HEADLIGHT OF THE CAR BEHIND YOU" Behind the wheel students perfect their parallel parking maneuvers.

LINDA GROSS copies new shorthand symbols in her steno book

Students interested in obtaining part time jobs were assisted by the new job placement office this year. Job opening notices announcing such valuable information as the type of job, job qualifications, and who to get in touch with if interested in an interview were posted on a bulletin board in the placement office.

The new student store in room 250 was welcomed by students and faculty alike. In decoratively arranged showcases and neatly arranged shelves, students and teachers were able to buy supplies such as pencils, pen cartridges, and notebook paper besides other not-so-necessary, but desirable, items as Arthur Hill pep badges, combs, and pennants from area colleges and universities.

Mr. Raymond Hartman reported that sales and distributive education classes "serve the cooperative education program, and its purposes are to provide for a more rounded program for students interested in the world of business." More emphasis was placed on research projects, since new and additional library space was made available for classroom use. A new, modern display area gave students a place to show off sale project displays in cases wired for lights and electricity.

Sales classes covered such units of study as the mechanics and techniques of selling, while distributive education taught the how, what, and why, of advertising. Sales and distributive education students learned the art of persuasion, proper work habits, employee-employer relations, cash register operation, and oral communication.

Through on-the-job training and class room instruction, office training students used old skills and newly acquired skills such as filing, the use of such office machines as the dictaphone, and office procedures.

Mrs. Charlotte Damuth stated that knowledge in shorthand and typing "is job-security for any high school graduate."

SORTING UNDERCLASS PICTURES keeps staff members hopping

Although color has been used in previous Legendas, this year's book is the first one in several years displaying color pictures. Staff members spent several days deciding just where the color pictures should go.

Before the real work of producing Arthur Hill's yearbook began, a theme had to be chosen and the "ladder" set up. For each deadline, section editors then chose layouts, ordered pictures, wrote and typed copy, prepared 3-R layouts, and sent their pages to be printed as the advertising staff sold ads to local businesses. The work was not all done, though. After each deadline there was another one looming in the near future to plan and work toward, which meant more pictures to take and more ads to sell. Besides all this, proof pages had to be checked, corrected, and returned to the yearbook company.

Varsity cheerleaders, chosen in the spring, taught Hillites the cheers, "Locomotion" and "Timber-1-2-3". The junior varsity squad trained for cheerleading by attending summer and fall clinics.

Majorettes added sparkle to our games. Drum majors had the responsibility of leading the marching band. Majorettes and drum majors marched at Michigan State University on Band Day last autumn.

The music and drama departments combined efforts to present a Christmas assembly. In the processional, choir members carrying candles and singing "O Come, All Ye Faithful" marched to their places. "This Strange Night," a nativity play, was performed. V-I-C-T-O-R-Y was the battle cry at pep assemblies in which cheerleaders taught the student body new cheers.

Inexperience Prevents Lumberjacks From A Win

Football faced a rebuilding assignment this year. With nine lettermen from last year's Valley Championship team, Coach Becker needed only time to prepare for rugged Saginaw Valley League opponents. Time, however, told the story, as the Lumberjacks came to life late in the season.

Starting the season against Pontiac, Arthur Hill scored early, but were overtaken in the second half by the highly-rated team. The following week at Flint, the Hillites turned back Southwestern's Colts 14-13. The Hills held the Colts for three downs within five yards of the goal line as time ran out. The Lumberjacks then were defeated by Flint Central, Bay City Central, Midland, and Flint Northern. At mid-season Coach Becker brought five junior varsity players up to varsity and juggled positions so that many underclassmen gained experience. Arthur Hill then played to a 13-13 deadlock with Bay City Handy, and a 12-6 win over arch-rival Saginaw High on a rainy and wind-swept field.

Jack Visuri and Glen Lesson coached their junior varsity gridders to four wins, four losses and one tie. Backs Art Dijak and Dave Hart furnished scoring punch for the little Lumberjacks. Dick Goodman's sophomores finished their best season in three years with a 6-2 record, including a double victory over Saginaw High.

Junior Varsity Retains Little Brown Jug

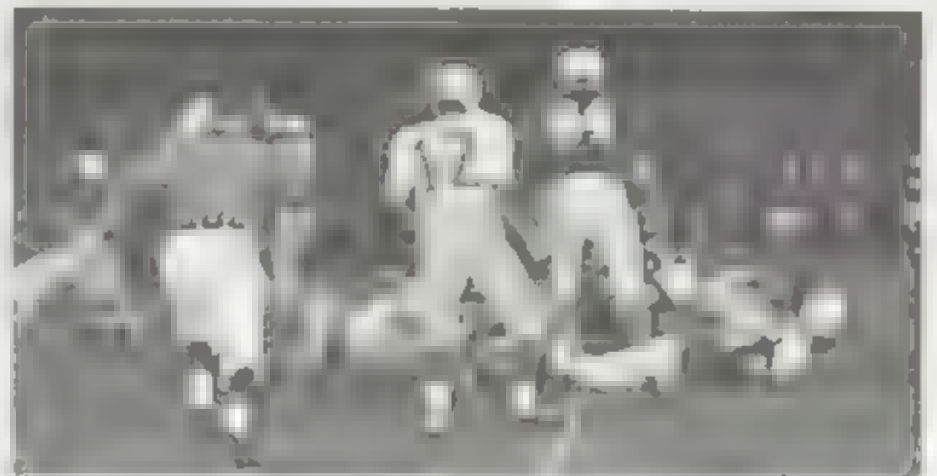

THE LITTLE BROWN JUG is in Arthur Hill's trophy case for its fourth straight year.

Battling for the Little Brown Jug began in 1929. The Lion's Club of Saginaw devised this trophy so that the winner of the junior varsity game of Saginaw High and Arthur Hill would be recognized at a banquet and gain possession of the Jug for the following year. At one time our little Lumberjacks were down 13—3 in the series. A sudden splurge after World War II has narrowed the gap to 21—20, including Arthur Hill victories in the last four games.

For its third year of competition the Arthur Hill wrestling team captured a second, fourth place title. Under the leadership of Coach John Kring both the varsity and J.V. teams had good seasons. Wrestling is fast becoming a major sport for the Hillites, and is continually drawing more spectators.

During the Saginaw Valley meet, on February 19th, the Hillite wrestlers took a fourth. Three grapplers took second place honors. Mike Eldred, Bob Vogt, and Al Gerwin overpowered their opponents for second place but lost in their bids for first place. This year the wrestlers beat Saginaw High by the score of 32 to 14.

Saginaw Valley Meet		Fifth

Experience proved important as five returning lettermen led this year's team to fifth place in the Valley. Greg Rickard and Ron Miller led the Varsity attack with Dave Hill, Todd Turbin, and Doug Kilbourne close behind. The Harriers proved superior to arch-rivals Saginaw High and Douglas MacArthur by out distancing Saginaw High in four out of the five encounters and by scoring in the Valley meet, with five runners ahead of Saginaw High's first man. The Hills also overpowered MacArthur by wide margins in both of their encounters. The season was ended by an eighteenth place in the regional run at Lansing. Coach Petzko faces a rebuilding job next season with only three of his eleven returning runners letter winners.

But Seniors Play

Due to city wide unsportsmanlike conduct after Saginaw Public School basketball games, a Saginaw Board of Education ruling forced the Hills and other Saginaw teams to play their last home games with no spectators. This ruling did not keep the Hills from a successful season. The Lumberjack's, who finished fourth in the Valley, topped Co-SVL Champion Saginaw High, 69-64, for the MHSAA District trophy, and in doing so won the city championship for the second straight year. The Hills went on to be defeated in regional competition by a taller Flint Northwestern five. The Hillites also took two out of three games from township rival, Douglas MacArthur.

The renowned Arthur Hill "H" boys, Dennis Herzog, Dave Hammer, and Roger Hayman, continued to lead the Hillites throughout the season. These seniors, each in their third year of varsity competition, pulled the Lumberjacks in and out of many tense and close games. Mr. Goodman's junior varsity counterparts finished the season with a 11-5 record.

Juniors John Decker, Ike Reinis, and Bob Cady, proved to be able performers, ready to take over next year's reigns.

Captures Twenty-Second Valley Championship

For the first time in fifteen years the Arthur Hill swim team was not rated as the favorite to capture the Saginaw Valley swimming crown, but through the determination of the varsity squad, a smashing victory was attained at the Valley Championships held at the Arthur Hill pool. The Hillites outscored the closest competitor by nearly sixty points, the widest margin in the championship's history.

The season began with a brilliant victory in the Arthur Hill relays. The Hillites established three new relay records. However the Hill's string of fifty consecutive dual meet victories was snapped by a close loss to Pontiac Central, 53—52. The team suffered only one other setback, a defeat by Valley favorites, Bay City Central 53—52. Captain Eric Hanson and Junior Mike Steeves established the only team records this year with a 29.5 effort in the 60 yard freestyle and a time of 4:11.6 in the 400 yard freestyle.

At the Saginaw Valley Championships outstanding individual performances secured Arthur Hill's twenty-second Valley Championship in twenty-three years. The medley relay team of Jim Stevens, Chuck Khuen, John Raleigh, and Mark Stanuszek scored a solid first. In the diving event, seniors Stan Lewis and Tim Gohm, and sophomore Dave Silver, placed first, second and third. Mike Steeves was a double winner, capturing the 200 yard individual medley in a record time of 2:13.5 and the 100 yard freestyle. Eric Hanson followed in third place in the 100 yard freestyle and scored a first place in the 50 yard freestyle. Jim Stevens won the 100 yard backstroke, while Rick Ault and Mark Wolz placed third, fourth and fifth, sixth in the distance freestyle events. Sophomores Jacob Kuyper and John Raleigh placed third and fourth, respectively, in the 400 yard freestyle and in the 100 yard butterfly. The Hillite squad captured six of the eleven events to amass 240 points.

Never before in Valley competition has a team won such a decisive victory. Mr. Morey's swimmers contributed a determined effort toward achieving the ultimate victory even though the team was not rated first. The swimming team's record of twenty-three Valley Championships is unequaled throughout the Saginaw Valley.

Record-shattering performances in the 880-yard run and the mile relay topped the Arthur Hill track season last spring. Senior John Geiger won the half mile at the Valley Championships in Midland with a school record time of 1:58.8, and the mile relay team composed of Geiger, Dan Jones, Todd Turbin and Dave Hill set a school mark of 3:27.

After losing the Saginaw Valley Title in 1964, the Arthur Hill Tennis Team rebounded with a spectacular undefeated season in Valley competition in 1965. The season was climaxed by a close 4-3 victory over a powerful Midland squad. Arthur Hill finished second, though, to the Chemics in the regional tournaments at Owosso.

Senior Lloyd Anderson and junior Joe Rombach qualified to go to the state meet by winning the regional doubles crown. In the state meet they defeated three teams, reaching the semi-finals, before bowing to the eventual winners from East Grand Rapids. Their fine playing earned Arthur Hill third place in the state for Class A schools. Junior Graham Galovics and senior Ken Gross also added to the team's fine effort.

Arthur Hill broke even this year with a record of six wins and six losses. Experience, being a prime factor on any team, was on our side with over half of the team being seniors. Highlighting this year's play was the good pitching. According to Coach William Vondette, pitching is the most important part of a high school baseball team. Coach Vondette is relying on many outstanding junior varsity players, along with returning lettermen, to form next year's varsity team. The junior varsity, doing little better than their counterparts, finished the season with a record of eight wins and six losses.

Varsity golfers finished as co-champions of the Saginaw Valley League with Midland in 1965. The six-man team finished with a 9—1 overall record. At the regional championships at Midland, Arthur Hill defeated seventeen other teams and obtained a first place trophy.

A new school record was set in the second match of the season when golfers shot a combined total of 379 strokes against Flint Central. This cut eight strokes off the previous record set in 1953. Coach Murphy has gained many fine players from the junior varsity and sophomore teams coached by Edwin Schalk. The entire varsity squad will be returning, along with many underclassmen who gained experience in practice matches.

Art Department Announces One Man Shows

A ONE MAN EXHIBIT is being prepared by Steve Light.

JEAN DYER poses in front of her one man project of pen and ink

By Marie MacCord

One man art exhibits displayed in the school showcases featured individual talent from the art classes. Students who had traveled to Europe last summer shared their experiences through the one-man shows by presenting illustrations of countries and places they had visited. One of the shows gave a pictorial tour of Europe illustrated in sketches by Carol Nash. Her sketches of the mountains, a French boy, and a gay restaurant conveyed the open, free life of Europe. An example of the variety of the one-man shows was the undersea showcase displayed by Anita Zilbers. Ingenuity was Anita's main tool. Her octopus was nothing more than a chore girl; fish were made of tissue. Also on display were pen and ink drawings, watercolor, and portraiture.

The one-man shows gave recognition to the individual since students excelled in different media, such as watercolor, oils, and tempora. The shows served as an inspiration to other students, and allowed viewers to see how the individual artist's style developed from show to show. Mrs. Wylie feels that art means having experiences and sharing them with others. Through the one-man shows the art students were able to express their awareness of the world and people around them, and to represent their environment as they saw it.

Joining Saginaw, Midland, and the Bay City high schools, Arthur Hill's a cappella choir took part in the Delta Choral Festival held in March at Delta College. At the festival, choirs which had never sung together before joined their voices to form an enjoyable program for the public. The musicians met during the afternoon. First they rehearsed the numbers performed by all the choirs combined, and then the pieces performed by the choirs individually. After the formal rehearsal the students danced to popular tunes, and later ate a hearty meal while telling each other about their schools. Following supper and a short relaxation period, the choirs proved the worth of their day of musically-formed friendships by performing a public concert.

The vocal department provided musical service to the community by presenting a Christmas concert, at the Veteran's Day assembly, and at commencement.

Theater of the Absurd Comes to Arthur Hill

Ionesco's Avant-Garde "Rhinoceros" Satirizes Mass Conformity

JAN LENT, student director of "Rhinoceros," studies the emotions portrayed by the players.

"Rhinoceros," by Eugene Ionesco is truly "avant garde," that is, theater of the absurd. This unusual play in three acts is a satirical comedy in which the rhinoceros represents conformity. Although a rhinoceros represents conformity, the symbol could be any other animal. The characters all call themselves individuals when in reality they all want to become rhinoceroses. At the end of the play they do become rhinoceroses except Berenger, a publishing clerk who detests conformity and refuses to become one. The play projected any meaning that its viewers wanted to give it.

The student director of "Rhinoceros" was Jan Lent. Under the direction of Jan and the coaching of drama teacher Mrs. Bishop, the players performed their best. Many rehearsals were required, not to mention the time to learn lines, but they resulted in success.

Introducing: Mr. Jensen and New Ideas

MR. RICHARD JENSEN, new to Arthur Hill this year, recently toured Europe with a musical study group sponsored by the University of Iowa.

Michigan State marching band style and a new stage band were introduced by Arthur Hill's new instrumental director, Mr. Richard Jensen. The new marching style was the formula used by Michigan State in shaping field formations. It is an organized plan using squads, each squad being composed of four band members. When marching into a formation each squad performs its own designated steps. Thus it is less probable that an individual will take the wrong number of steps or march into the wrong direction. Since the new style is less complicated and more efficient, it made the limited football halftime shows more effective.

The new stage band formed by Mr. Jensen consisted of sixteen saxophones, five trumpets, two trombones, one bass, one set of drums, and one piano. The stage band, larger than a dance band, played theatre-type music.

Mr. Jensen's standards of selections of music were guided not only by the cultural content, but also by whether the students were able to feel the music. Because Mr. Jensen took into consideration the students' attitude toward the music, they presented it with the feeling necessary to make the music live.

BOB WATERS AND JIM HOLMGREN go over the music again, and again, and again . . .

SOFT STRAINS OF THE SYMPHONIC STRINGS filled the auditorium.

Fine music is a tradition at Arthur Hill, and the orchestra this year carried on this tradition. Selections performed ranged from Brahms to Broadway musical hits. At assemblies and concerts, the orchestra provided enjoyment for its audiences. A new feature for 1965-66 was a brilliant brass choir which summoned students to the Christmas program where the orchestra played, among other things, "Sleigh Ride" and "What Child is This."

Mr. Jensen introduced many student soloists during the year; among them were Sherry Burns, Barbara Brown, Brian Miessner, and Herb Karpicke.

"CRESCENDO," urges Herb Karpicke, student director of the orchestra.

school for the big game against Saginaw High.

With eighty members the Pep Club was the largest club at Arthur Hill in 1966. Homecoming represented the major project for members this year. They were in charge of decorations for the Homecoming assembly and dance. Through pep assemblies and posters in the halls, the club aroused school spirit. Blue and Gold Week was again celebrated this year. Pepsters sold Arthur Hill pins during the week and planned a pancake breakfast.

Since the Latin Club was affiliated with a chapter of the Junior Classical League, members had to memorize the J.C.L. Creed. The club's meetings consisted of games, special ceremonies, skits, short plays, style shows, pictures, and speakers, all having to do with Roman life and culture. Each member had to make a Roman costume to wear to club meetings. New members entered the club as slaves, and were sold at a slave auction to the highest bidder. They had to serve their masters until they gained their freedom through the club's point system. By earning points, a club member attained the following ranks in the club: freedman, plebian, patrician, senator, consul, proconsul, emperor, and deity.

Planning to spend the funds to help finance a trip to Quebec, members of the French Club sold stationery. Their interest in the French language and the French people also lead to their subscribing to the French magazine, "Madame Age Lendre". Other activities of the club included performing skits done in French and watching accredited French films.

Studying the customs of Spain and the related countries of South America proved interesting and beneficial to Spanish Club members. The club had a number of guest speakers, whose topics concerned Spain and other Spanish speaking countries. The highlight of the year was the annual Christmas party where a "Pinata" was broken and its treasures distributed.

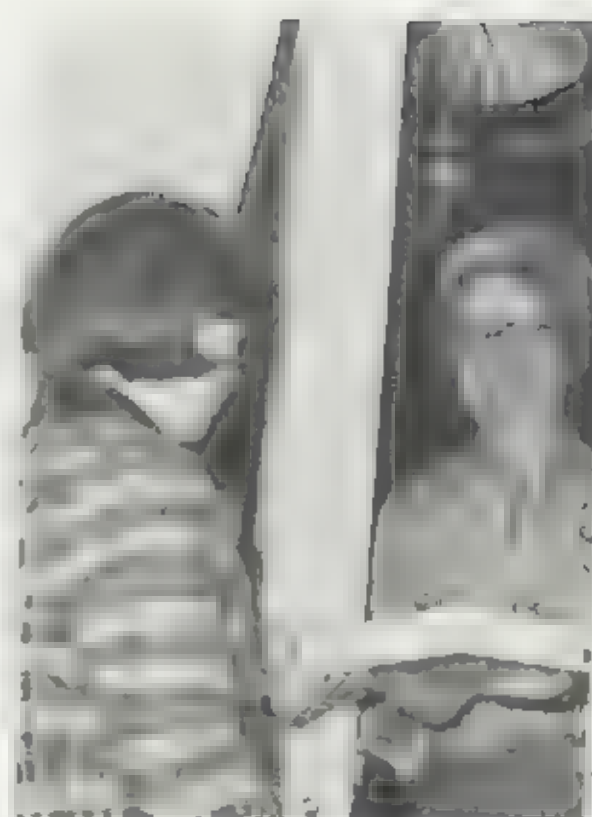

Through the use of dolls, conversations with the students from Germany and those who had previously visited that country, the study of different maps and flags of Germany, and viewing films, the general living standards and customs of the German people were examined by the German Club. Pictures showing the various towns, Hamburg, Frankfurt, Berlin, and Bonn, flags, and maps were displayed on the club's bulletin board.

Betterment of the school, community, and themselves was the aim of the Y-Teens. To achieve this aim they gave food baskets to Saginaw's needy families during the holidays and awarded the Sophomore Cup to the outstanding sophomore girl. This year a bake sale raised the money the girls gave to the Y.W.C.A.'s World Fellowship Fund. Members enjoyed potlucks, a splash party, and a slumber party.

This year the Hi-Y renewed its practice of sending delegates to the state-wide Legislature Day in Lansing. At this convention they elected state officers and voted on model legislation that they had prepared. The highlight of the year was the Hi-Y faculty basketball game.

Audio-visual staff members helped teachers with projectors, record players, and tape recorders. Whenever the auditorium was used, the stage crew operated the curtains and lights.

Honors Clubs Tap Actors And Journalists

Three new Thespians, upon their acceptance into the National Thespian Society, first had to pay their life membership fees after which they received a year's subscription to Dramatics, the official publication, as well as membership cards, seals, and certificates. Rhinoceros, presented in January, 1966, helped aspiring Thespians to earn their required ten points for admittance into the club, which stresses participation in arts as a means of teaching youth an appreciation of the cultural progress of the theater, radio, motion pictures, and television.

Attaining membership in the Treanor Chapter of the Quill and Scroll Society was one of the goals strived for by student journalists. Established at Arthur Hill in 1927 by the late Arthur Treanor, the society recognizes those students who have done outstanding work in the field of journalism. Membership requires that the student be in the upper third of his class, have participated in journalism for three semesters, and have scholastic and character recommendations from his journalism instructor. After receiving their memberships, students were awarded Quill and Scroll pins.

Three members of the Girls' Athletic Association had the opportunity to see Miss America at Camp Cavell near Port Huron.

Linda Jackson, Marcia Allen, and Charlene Doty, all sophomores, while attending a leadership camp in October, were able to hear Miss America of 1965, Wanda Kay Van Dyke, as she stressed the importance of athletics. These girls learned to "Link the Rings" of femininity, fitness, function, and fun—the theme of Camp Cavell.

Besides school sports such as volleyball, basketball, baseball, and badminton, the G.A.A. also participated in horseback riding, skiing, and cycling. These after school activities created competition among members as well as among different schools participating in the program. To pay for awards given for attendance and to enlarge the treasury, the G.A.A. held a bake sale and a candy sale. The awards included an Arthur Hill plaque, G.A.A. sweat shirts, G.A.A. pins, and a special award for the best attendance recorded. New members of the club had a party in the gymnasium for the old members.

In order to become qualified swim aids, aspirants had to attend a one-night training course to learn how to instruct the students in the various groups.

Swim aids participated in a free swim get together at the pool, where they discussed their groups and demonstrated helpful teaching techniques to their colleagues.

Comers to Tourney

An all-school tournament was sponsored by the Bowling Club during Blue and Gold Week. To give everyone an equal chance, non-members competed with club members on a handicap basis. In May bowlers attended a banquet at which awards were presented to outstanding members.

With the 1965-1966 membership so large, the Rifle Club required the formation of two clubs to accomodate all of its members. The members who competed against other Saginaw Valley schools held their meets in the school's range.

Field trips to Shiawassee Flats and Murphy Lake State Game Area were the highlights of the 1966 Biology and Natural Science Club. At the monthly meetings guest speakers presented programs which were both educational and enjoyable.

One of the Science Research Club's many lecturers, Mrs. Bert Jochen, chose as her topic the field of medical technology. Other fields of science were covered in talks by members of the club, such as Sam Purdy's discussion of anti-matter.

Future Teachers Tutor Fellow Hillites

OFFICERS EDWINA WRIGHT AND MARSHA McALLISTER study plans for meetings of the new Future Health Career Club.

"IT ALL LOOKS SO GOOD," Kathy Mielke has a hard time deciding what to buy from Future Homemaker Barb Copping at their bake sale

Future Teachers who excelled in certain classes tutored fellow students seeking aid in these classes. The F.T.A. members participating in the new project tutored their students during their own study hall, provided that the student was also free. Club members helped with the handicapped children at Handley, a neighboring elementary school. A different student went every hour during the day and helped with occupational and physical therapy.

Bake sales presented a new project for the Future Homemakers of America. The proceeds received from this sale were given to a charity named by club members. Guest speakers were welcomed throughout the year. Speakers' topics concerned mainly the household duties of homemakers.

Trips to Veterans', St. Mary's, and County Hospitals gave Future Health Career Club members opportunities to observe different health careers to acquaint members with hospital procedures. Expanded from former years' Future Nurses Club, the F.H.C.C. now includes all students who wish to go into any health career exclusive of medicine.

In September the Future Physicians' Club traveled to the Michigan State Medical Society's centennial convention in Detroit. At the noon luncheon, Dr. Edward Annis, past president of the American Medical Association, dedicated his address to the Saginaw Future Physicians Club. Monthly meetings were held at St. Luke's, St. Mary's and Saginaw General Hospitals where local doctors exposed members to the different fields of the medical profession.

Gower Music, Inc. for giving us permission to use our theme "It's a Big, Wide, Wonderful World."

NINETEEN sixty-six has been a wonderful year
 As it has entered in our memories many times

Years to think and to grow,
 For now we are individuals with paths of our own

Much of our world remains before
 To be known and to be known of
 In the quiet hall
 And in the smiles of our friends
 And overall never leave

And the world is a place of mechanics
 And the world is a place of mechanics

And the world is a place of mechanics
 And the world is a place of mechanics

Honor
 And the world is a place of mechanics
 And the world is a place of mechanics
 And the world is a place of mechanics
 And the world is a place of mechanics

It's a BIG, WIDE, WONDERFUL WORLD
